as we see it

In Chesaning, Mich., one Reinhardt Bruegeman has just completed a six-foot, three-inch scale model of the Eiffel Tower. He did it all with toothpicks, 6200 of them, and it took him 105 spare-time hours.

Faye Ganiott of Los Angeles works for hours over her chewing gum paintings. After the gum's well chawed she sticks it on a hunk of plywood, and when the plywood's covered and the stuff has hardened, she paints it. Makes pretty bas-reliefs, she says, and her digestion is excellent.

Bob Streit of Chicago spends from two to 15 hours to carve a miniature out of a peach seed and heaven knows how long it takes that molar Michaelangelo in Nashville, Tenn., to fashion dogs and cats out of the teeth he extracts from his dental patients.

Television networks should take special note of this summer surge in innocent, productive pastimes. The TV folks would prefer to have everyone watching I've Got a Secret, Place the Face, What's the Story? Name That Tune, Masquerade Party, Anyone Can Win, Take a Guess and the other panel quiz shows that fill the air these days. After all, think how hard the brains and brawn of the industry worked to plan, to budget, and to produce these additions to America's cultural heritage.

Why, then, are potential viewers turning to toothpick construction, chewing gum portraiture and molar modeling? Is there some basic underlying reason? Is there, perhaps, a lesson here for television's thinkers?

We rather believe there is. We're not certain, of course, but it could be that the strange hobbies are evidence of just how far people will go to escape some of the summer shows being dished up for viewers these long, hot evenings.—M.P.

CHANCE OF A LIFETIME:

Dennis James and the Talent are Making Good

Helen Halpin: blowing up a wave of acclaim.

YOUNG talent is on its way up to take the place of established stars in the television field, in the opinion of Dennis James, popular master-of-ceremonies of the Chance of a Lifetime show and one of TV's top commercial announcers.

James, whose show is doing its share in giving young professional artists an opportunity to reach the public, does not believe that TV ever will run short of talent. He feels that many of the youngsters now appearing on his program will be the future stars of television.

The show has provided as good a chance for James as for the talent he introduces. As he recalls:

"About 15 months ago, Stop the Music was going off the air and I was asked by ABC to come up with a new half-hour show to take its place. Bob Jennings of the Jennings agency owned the title for a show called Chance of a Lifetime. We decided to use it for an unpretentious little talent show, using professionals who hadn't yet cracked the big time.

"Well, before we knew it, we had every night club and theater operator in the country watching the show. All these operators became scouts for us, recommending acts. We began to see the possibilities of the show. Sure enough, the thing began to build."

So far, the only name emerging from obscurity to become a top flighter is Helen Halpin, the convulsive gal comedienne blowing up a storm at present on the All Star Summer Review. But according to Dennis, the next few years will prove how valuable Chance really is. "It's inevitable," he says. "The new talent has to come from somewhere and right now we have four teams of talent judges scouring the United States for new faces. Over a thousand people are auditioned each week."

This, of course, brings up the inevitable comparison with Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts, a program working along similar lines and with twice the rating of Chance of a Lifetime. The comparison doesn't cow Dennis at all.

"Aside from the fact of Arthur's own tremendous popularity, I don't think that Talent Scouts would rate as high as our show. You've got to remember that Arthur has problems that we don't have. His show is a radio-TV simulcast and as a result, every act on the show is forced to stick close to the mike and the show remains basically a radio show."

There was some fear, when Chance first came on, that Dennis, as an old professional, would try to dominate all the contestants. The reverse is true.

Some of the past winners on Chance who seem headed toward the big time include:

Fay Dewitt, going full speed toward a brilliant comic career, is currently wowing at New York's Versailles as part of the George White show.

Marge Duncan, also in the George White show, whose dancing has won critical acclaim.

Dolores Hawkins, recently sang at the Copacabana getting second billing to Danny Thomas, who called her one of the business's bright talents.

Rhea Jackson, soprano, recently sang the lead in Bizet's Pearl Fishers at Carnegie Hall.

Helen Dixon, way up there on the record best seller lists with her recording of Don't Call My Name.

Cindy Lord, who has appeared as vocalist with Vaughn Monroe.

Lou Wirtz, New York pianist, getting a big buildup from records.

Everyone connected with the show is especially happy about the row of triumphs scored by Little Buck, a fine tap dancer, who worked for years before being found by one of the show's scouts.

Another find was the Douglas Duke Trio, a musical group that is in high favor with the jazz set in New York.

Dennis is slightly overwhelmed by the burgeoning success of Chance. He's pleased, too, for this reason aside from usual ones. "Practically everybody connected with show business is plagued with the same problem. You've got a mother-in-law or cousin who figures that you know somebody who'll give a talented friend of theirs a big break.

"Now all I have to do is say 'send 'em around and I'll see that they get an audition.' Surprisingly enough, some of the people sent around do have talent."

a noted clergyman answers the question:

What Is Television Doing For Religion?

By Dr. Norman Vincent Peale

Pastor, Marble Collegiate Church, N. Y.

WHILE passing through cities and towns on a recent railroad journey, I became sharply aware of the forests of TV antennas. From houses, large and small, pretentious and humble, they rose mutely signifying that those who lived there were reaching out to bring into their homes entertainment and information. It occurred to me that they were also reaching for something to give them hope, courage and strength, a faith by which to live.

That people are not asking in vain is indicated by the televised religious programs now offered. Among them are Frontiers of Faith featuring the actual services of various selected churches. This program is carried on 52 stations. "Billy" Graham, the popular evangelist, has a large TV following for his Hour of Decision, as does the Rev. Percy Crawford in his series, Youth on the March.

The Rev. William A. Fagal conducts a well received program, Faith for Today. Bishop Fulton J. Sheen is, of course, extremely popular with the TV viewers of the 64 stations on which he appears. (The program may be expanded to 132 stations this fall.) The Lutheran Church presents a most successful dramatized series, This is the Life, now carried on 92 stations.

Mrs. Peale and I present the first husband-and-wife religious TV program under the title of What's Your Trouble? It is currently seen on 77 stations. Our program is under the auspices of the Broadcasting and Film Commission of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. This organization will also offer nationally a new program this fall called The Pastor which has been very popularly received in Texas. It will feature the Rev. "Bob" Goodrich, of Dallas, for 26 weeks in dramatized pastoral counseling. The second series of 13 weeks will be given by the Rev. James Kennedy, of the Episcopal Church.

TV Increases Church Attendance

I am often asked if TV religious programs increase church attendance, and the answer definitely is "yes." I make it a custom to greet my church congregation after every service, and often spend as long as 45 minutes shaking hands with a long line of people. One after another they say, "I came because I watch Mrs. Peale and you on television." The Rev. Everett Parker made a scientifically directed survey using the depth interview system to determine effect of this form of religious presentation, and has found that it not only starts people going to church, but brings them into church activity as well. More important is that people write us that they are putting into practice the spiritual living techniques suggested over TV.

Heavy Mail Response

The mail response from religious TV indicates the extent of interest on our own program. Approximately 3,000 persons per week write in for our giveaway 40-page booklet, What's Your Trouble? This contains 18 lessons for handling the common problems of living. Other programs also report a large mail response.

The generosity of TV stations in carrying religious programming on a sustaining basis represents an immense contribution to the churches. Many regular church attendants express regret that religious TV programs are scheduled during church service hours. However, such programs reach the non-churchgoers and the evidence is that TV is heavily recruiting new church attendants among this group.

A record eve: Patti gets set for some music on one of her rare evenings at home.

A Little Travelin' Music

Patti Page's Yacht Stays Home While She Tours U.S. By Plane

PATTI PAGE spends about as much time in her plush Park Avenue apartment as she does playing left field for the Dodgers—and she's not even a Brooklyn fan. On the theory that a TV and recording star must get out to meet her public face to face, Patti's life, between her TV and recording engagements, has become a round of appearances at theaters, night clubs and college proms.

As star of TV's Scott Music Hall, telecast on alternate Wednesday nights, Patti spends the first three days every other week in New York preparing and then doing the show. That's when she visits her apartment. But immediately after each TV program, she heads for the road again. Her Park Avenue penthouse becomes only a mailing address.

Patti isn't that fond of traveling.

With two Cadillacs to drive and a new yacht, she'd rather commute between Park Avenue and her yacht than between Park Avenue and Chicago, Detroit and points west. But travel is a vital part of her career.

When she hits the road to meet her fans via personal appearances, her record sales rocket and her TV rating climbs. Through her TV show, she can also count on bigger record sales and more customers for her theater appearances. And, of course, people who hear her recordings always want to see her either in person or on TV.

While her road tours have converted Patti into a seasoned traveler, she had seldom left her Tulsa home until she was 18. The daughter of a railroad section foreman, she was born in Claremore, Okla., the 10th of 11 children. (Her real name is Sarah Ann Fowler.) When she was a child, her family moved to Tulsa.

Big Break in Tulsa

Patti was originally employed as a staff artist at a Tulsa radio station. Soon afterwards, one of the regular singers on the station quit and Patti got her first break as a vocalist.

Patti's next step to fame, and the one which ultimately boosted her to national stardom, sounds like a press-agent's dream. But she contends the story is true.

It all started one hot night in Tulsa when Jack Rael, manager of the Jimmy Joy band, found himself unable to fall asleep in his small hotel room.

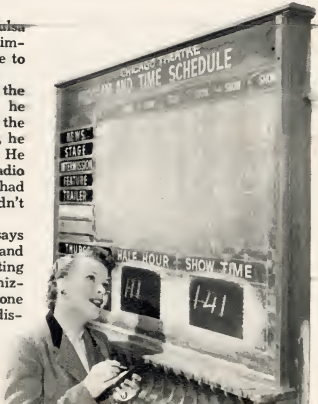
Seeking anything to break up the monotony of a sleepless night, he noticed a coin-operated radio on the night table. But, so the story goes, he had no change in his pocket. He reached over to switch on the radio anyway, hoping the person who had occupied the room previously hadn't used his entire quarter's worth.

By the sheerest coincidence, it says here, he tuned in Patti's station and she was singing. Immediately spotting her potentialities but not recognizing the voice, he grabbed the phone and called the station, hoping to discover what network the show was on. When he learned that she was strictly a local product, he made a date to interview her the following day and signed her on the spot.

Face to face: University of Detroit students listen as Patti sings at their prom.

Rael later became Patti's personal manager. After placing her on Don McNeill's Breakfast Club radio program in Chicago, he obtained a recording contract. That was three years ago. In July, she was signed to a new disc contract which guarantees her a minimum of $500,000 over the next five years.

Who said travel doesn't pay?



Five-a-day: Patti checks schedule on call board at Chicago theater.

MYSTERY GIRL IN GOLDFISH BOWL

Here Is The Truth About Haleloke

THERE can't be many mysteries in a goldfish bowl. Especially when the inhabitants of the bowl happen to be friends of a red-headed kingfish called Arthur Godfrey.

The Godfrey gang, which performs in TV's biggest of all goldfish bowls, is the most ogled at, wondered about and publicized crew of performers in the medium. Millions of fans live in a kind of electronic intimacy with them all. The romantic plans of Janette Davis, Frank Parker's age, Marion Marlowe's hair-do, Julius LaRosa's love interest—somehow these are all conversation pieces wherever Godfreyites meet.

Yet, shuffled among the limelighted little Godfreys is a girl about whom even the most feverish Godfrey devotee knows virtually nothing. Although she has been performing for Artha' for almost three years, she remains as mysterious to the televiewers as her exotic single name—Haleloke. The fact that she actually has a second monicker—it's Kahauolopua—doesn't lessen the mystery too much.

Hale—they've boiled her name down to that—is by far the shyest of the Godfrey minions. Probably because of this, Arthur has never "featured" the gal by forcing her to "talk on her feet" as he does with the others. This shyness has also denied her the publicity enjoyed by the other little Godfreys.

This anonymity has branded Haleloke as the enigma of the cast. The fact that few know much about the girl has given birth to some misconceptions about her.

Some viewers have insisted she is no Hawaiian at all—but merely a Latin who can hula. Others have pictured her as a heroic girl who won the admiration of Godfrey during the last war and that Arthur is repaying her for her heroism. A story which recently made the rounds had her pulling wounded sailors into life rafts on Pearl Harbor day. One letter writer suggested her hula was a phony one ("not sexy enough") and that the "lyrics" to her native songs were really gibberish.

A Retiring Role

The mystery has compounded itself by Hale's back seat role on both the morning show and the Wednesday evening Friends extravaganza. As it is, the folks at home know slightly more about Godfrey's mystery girl than they do about the piano player in Archie Bleyer's orchestra.

Hale is truly a full-blooded Hawaiian, although she had to come to New York to learn her native hula dance. "Everybody thinks all Hawaiians are born masters of the hula," she says. "It's not so. We learn the dance the same as you learn jitterbugging."

Admittedly, Haleloke's rendition of the famous Hawaiian wiggle is far from sexy. "But it's not supposed to," commented Hale's best friend, Janette Davis. "It's not just a matter of bumping your hips. It's a smooth motion. And the Hawaiians don't consider the hula sexy—we do! Hale's version of the hula is the real thing."

To dash the heroine role that Hale has been cast into by a few more romantic souls, Miss Kahauolopua was in Honolulu on December 7, 1941—but she slept soundly through the whole attack. When she awakened the Japanese were gone and any chance for heroics was gone with them.

Actually, the closest Haleloke ever came to the war was working in a munitions plant.

Struck Godfrey's Fancy

As with most of the Godfrey gang, Haleloke was hired after she struck the fancy of her boss. (Arthur's fancy was struck by Marion Marlowe in a Miami Beach nitery, by Julius LaRosa at a servicemen's show, by Lu Ann Simms on Talent Scouts.)

Haleloke got the magic "I-like-this-girl" nod when Godfrey visited the islands in the summer of 1950. She was entertaining at a party at which Godfrey was guest of honor.

Arthur urged her to lend a slice of Hawaiian culture to his TV potpourri by returning with him.

But Haleloke, reluctant to leave her homeland, demurred. Arthur made her a standing offer that if she weakened she could join his cast.

A few months later Haleloke was in San Francisco with the Hawaii Calls radio show when she received a wire from the Godfrey office reminding her that the offer was still good. This apparently did it; she was in New York six hours later.

Paradoxically enough, Godfrey's mystery girl is as uncomplicated as a straight line. Although she is reticent and shy, insiders generally acknowledge her to be the best liked of the cast by all the little Godfreys.

Chicago Teletype

TV's Week: WGN-TV execs, in a sweeping move to boost their television status in Chicagoland, have purchased equipment which will increase their power four times by Oct. 1, 1953. This will mean that picture reception within a 40-mile radius of Chicago will be clearer, while the fringe (outlying) area will be extended 20 miles beyond that. At present, Grade A (top) reception is limited to 22 miles, with the fringe area reaching a 40-mile radius.

Allison

Report from Italy: Fran Allison, vacationing at Lake Como, found a scarcity of bellhops. Hotel visitors were astounded to see Frannie tuck nine pieces of luggage under her arms and hike toward her room. Puzzled friends in Chicago's Kukla, Fran and Ollie office are wondering where she acquired four extra satchels. When she left New York, she had only five. (Maybe Fran's smuggling out some European companions for the Kuklapolitan kingdom.)

The four networks have an argument ready for anyone who demands more Chicago-originated video shows: lack of studio space in the Windy City. Any warehouses for hire?

In case you've missed that midnight appliance salesman, Topper, you can see him on WBKB again under his own name, Ron Pritikin. The "Namastey" boy was threatened with legal action by newspaperman Roy Topper if he continued calling himself Topper. Ron's first duty after returning was to introduce a midnight movie. Title: Topper Returns.

Advance Tips on Shows: Jim Moran has increased his film budget by 50 per cent in his most recent move to purchase first-run films for fall Courtesy Theater presentations. In store are at least 13 epic films, one of which will be Copacabana starring Groucho Marx.

Roxanne

Shows in the Works: Roxanne, Bud Collyer's better half on Beat the Clock, strikes out on her own with a new quizzer, Challenge the Girls.

George Gobel, inked to a five-year TV ticket by NBC, is planning a video show from Chicago. It may be moved to Hollywood later.

His Stories Carry Grave Ideas

EVER since Orson Welles terrified the populace back in 1938 with a dramatized radio version of a Martian invasion, one sure way has been known to impress people. Scare the daylights out of them.

Ken Nordine, Chicago's master of the harrowing narrative, is living proof. Ken, whose haunting, expressive features are ideal for the role, is the star of that widely-acclaimed late-late-evening mood piece, Faces in the Window, seen at 11:45 PM on channel 5 each Thursday. His tales are well-calculated to keep one on the brink of a nervous breakdown.

A television "dream" is how Nordine describes his show. Misty, shadowy lighting effects, weird music, odd audio tricks—all these techniques are used effectively, enhancing the expressions gimlet-eyed Ken uses to create a mood. Next to sitting in on a seance, it's the eeriest experience imaginable.

In less than 10 months, this unusual show has won a good following. Its success is held due to the courage of George Heinemann, WNBQ's idea man; to the skill of Marvin David, who adapts the classic yarns; and, of course, to the artistry of Nordine.

In the deeply resonant voice he employs so well, Ken plays down his part on the program. He credits his "writers"—the world's great storytellers—who provide him with material. Ken claims with sincerity and vehemence that the stories carry a message as well as an impact. As proof, he cites six of his favorites and passes along these comments about their true meaning:

Poe's The Pit and the Pendulum... "a suspenseful tale of torture that weaves spiritual threads within a pattern of terror."

Lovecroft's Rats in the Wall... "shows how guilt feelings can change a human into something less than an animal."

Balzac's Passion in the Desert... "a blend of horror and tenderness—a man's love for a leopard exposes wild and primitive emotions."

Bierce's Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge... "a dream epsiode wherein the tenuous line between life and death is drawn."

Hawthorne's Rappaccini's Daughter ... "shows how someone unwilling to face life may toy with forbidden and sensual ideas."

Melville's The Lightning Rod Man... "a strange conflict on a stormy night symbolizes the eternal war between good and evil."

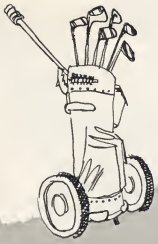
Ever seeking to improve Faces, conscientious Ken Nordine will try to introduce such masters of the macabre as Kafka, Blackwood and Aiken into future broadcasts. He's also angling for an earlier time spot—say, 11 PM to lure those viewers with midnight curfews.

Meanwhile, Ken, who off-screen is a friendly and cheerful fellow, keeps busy with other radio and video chores. He's one of the better local announcers, delivering the commercials for such top-rated shows as What's My Line? His is a face, stern or smiling, that should be around for quite a while.



BATTLE OF

THAT once-a-year opportunity to meet and greet your favorite local TV stars in person is here again. TV GUIDE's 3rd Celebrity Golf Tournament is slated for Friday, August 21 at spacious Bunker Hill Country Club, 6635 Milwaukee Ave., in Chicago.

Once again the public is invited as spectators to this gala outing free of charge. Tee-off times are on a sunrise-to-sunset schedule.

Video, radio and press headliners will vie for valued trophies and merchandise awards. The competition will be classed as follows: TV talent (male and female), TV staff, newscasters, sportscasters and writers.

Jim Moran will provide a fleet of sleek new Hudsons to carry the stars to the tournament grounds. Lovely Sabie models will accompany each foursome in pairs to attest to scores.

Some of the stars and a few of the scenes from last year's big tourney and its festive aftermath are shown on these pages. Most of the faces will again be seen at the tourney site plus many others familiar to viewers throughout Chicagoland. Why not make up a party and come on out?

HOW TO GET TO BUNKER HILL:

Bunker Hill Golf Club, 6635 N. Milwaukee Ave., site of TV GUIDE's 3rd Celebrity Golf Tournament, is located on Chicago's northwest side. If driving, take the Outer Drive north to Foster Ave. Then take Foster Ave. west to Milwaukee Ave. and turn north on Milwaukee which will take you to Bunker Hill at 6635 N. If going via CTA, take the Milwaukee Ave. bus to the end of the line at 6400 N.

Danny O'Neil, runner-up with 83 last year, putts.

Jim Moran, drenched in sudden downpour, changes in locker room.

Kay Westfall signs on line. Autograph fans have field day.

A BOO-ST FOR SUPER GHOST

by JACK MABLEY

Super Ghost (Sunday, Channel 5, at 6:30 PM) got rather a frigid reception from the professional viewers who rush into print faster than I can. But either I am getting senile or Super Ghost isn't as bad as the reviews. For a quiz show (important qualification) it is entertaining.

Bergen Evans, Northwestern's gift to non-educational television, presided at the word game. He had a panel which included two beautiful females and a couple of men who were relatively humble and erudite (for quiz show panelists).

It was a simple game—each player adds a letter, the player who adds the final letter making a word loses. There wasn't any confusion that I could find. More than any other quiz show I've seen, the viewer at home can follow the game easily on the screen.

Cowan Has Faith

The Lou Cowan organization brought Super Ghost back to the air this summer in spite of some terrible pannings last year. Mr. Cowan must have felt he had something, and I'm inclined to agree. As quiz shows go, it's fine—particularly as it gives us some natural midwestern personality among the panelists instead of that goo that's shoveled at us from New York under the guise of charm. And I do mean the Arlene Francis—Kilgallen—Joan Alexander axis.

I don't think this favorable reception of Super Ghost is provincialism on my part, because I was first to snipe at the show last year. Of course I watched the show on a beat-up old set, with a tinfoil aerial and practically everything in the picture black. No telling what I didn't see.

Here's the Best

As long as everything's looking so rosy this week, we might as well salute Eddie Albert and a summer replacement called Nothing But the Best (Tuesday, Channel 5, at 8 PM).

There are 50 programs on television which can hire acts, stick them in front of the camera, insert a few commercials, and advertise that they are presenting a television show.

It always comes as a shock when a producer makes proper use of lights and camera angles and faces and personalities and musicianship—in other words, when he points his camera at an entertainer instead of at a stage on which stands an entertainer.

Nothing But the Best is produced by a man who used to direct Garroway-at-Large, and he hasn't forgotten a thing. Eddie Albert, on the show I saw, sang, did the commercials, and introduced the talent. He's just on the edge of being overly cute, but somebody will surely pull him back from the brink.

The talent is good talent, which on some TV shows can seem like just another vaudeville act, but Nothing But the Best seems like the title. Let's hope the show stays around this fall.

Kitty for Katie

Either this is tolerance week or TV is better than ever. Kitty Kallen subbed for Mrs. Arthur Murray, and Miss Kallen definitely stamped herself as a star possibility. I'm for more female emcees, anyway.

Ed Sullivan came back from vacation with scenes from three good Broadway plays. It was great television. For variation, Rosemary Clooney sang some songs.

Rosemary is a lovely girl with a lovely voice. She was wearing one of those bare-shoulder jobs which have all the grace and suppleness of a strapless suit of armor. The girl moves, but the gown doesn't. It's distracting. Whatever happened to good old cloth clothes?

Boys and girls, when you work this puzzle correctly, you will have the name of a favorite feathered friend of ours who is seen daily on channel 2. Simply print in the spaces, and erase what you are asked to subtract. The remaining letters will spell his name. Can you draw him?

Mail your entries to Mollycues, c/o TV GUIDE, 731 S. Plymouth Ct., Chicago 5, Ill. before Monday, August 24. For the best entry, I'll award $1; second prize, 50 cents; next 25 prizes, a copy of Molly's big picture puzzle book. Solutions will appear here next week. In case of ties, originality and neatness counts.

Solution to last week's puzzle was: Elmer, the Elephant.

"How long has the picture been flapping over like this?"

by ED PAZDUR

IT'S a well known fact in the entertainment world that "publicity pays."

And because of publicity in TV GUIDE two weeks ago, WNBQ's pudgy Alex Dreier may be "paying."

In our column, we stated: "TV GUIDE's defending golf champion will be hard pressed for his title on Friday, August 21 by Danny O'Neil and Alex Dreier, both of whom shoot in the low 70's . . ."

Well, Dreier was matched in a special foursome at NBC's annual outing at Medinah Country Club recently with NBC biggies Jules Herbuveaux, Bill Ray and sportscaster Norm Barry.

Barry

Each was armed with a special copy of TV GUIDE telling about Dreier's "low seventy shooting." And each demanded a handicap from the commentator with a wallop!

The real darkhorses in this year's Celebrity Tourney are Billy Leach and Jim Lowe. Alex Dreier is a heavy favorite to defeat Jim Hurlbut for TV's newscaster bauble . . . Norm Barry may take a crack at the sportscaster's title . . . With another year of golf behind them many celebrities are expected to come up with better scores. Some of last year's gross tallies were as follows: Jim Moran (110), Toni Gilman (140), Ken Nordine (130), Francois Pope (135), Danny O'Neil (83), Jim Hurlbut (111), Wayne Griffin (107), Eddy Howard (86), and Bill Evans (92). Dozens of other celebrities were unable to finish their games last year because of a heavy downpour of rain. Over 75 celebrities were playing when the rains came.

Make up a party . . . You'll enjoy meeting your TV favorites in person at TV GUIDE's 3rd Annual Celebrity Golf Tourney, August 21, at Bunker Hill Golf Club. Admission is free!

For exciting Stock Car Races, join Bob Drews and Ed Pazdur 10 pm Sundays, WBBM-TV.

TV FORECAST OF New Shows AND WEEK'S HIGHLIGHTS

U.N. General Assembly returns: The seventh General Assembly session of the United Nations, which will consider ratification of the Korean truce agreement, will be telecast to homes throughout the U.S. and Canada daily, beginning with the conference at UN headquarters in New York on Monday, August 17, 3:30 to 4:00 P.M. WNBQ and WBBM-TV are set to carry the conferences with the probability that WBKB will join them. Henry Cassidy, veteran commentator, and Peter Stursberg, correspondent, will provide commentary and analysis of the historic events for NBC-TV.

Cassidy

Vicious circle: While still attempting to keep up with television's summer replacements, the regular shows begin again. Walter Greaza resumes his familiar role as "Chief of Bureau" when Treasury Men In Action returns on Thursday, August 27 . . . Ethel and Albert return to their Saturday night spot on the NBC-TV network August 29 . . . Paul Winchell and his sidekick Jerry Mahoney return August 30 in a new Sunday time spot . . . Herb Shriner returns after his long, long vacation to Two For the Money, which moves to Saturday night at 8:00.

Debuts: Working on the thesis that "every fan considers himself an expert," Linn Burton emcees a new baseball quiz, Call The Play, on Thursdays at 10:30 P.M. channel 7 . . . Fred Allen emcees a new audience participation show, Judge For Yourself, in which home viewers will get their chance to judge the talent. Show preems Tuesday, 9:00 P.M.

Special events: The All-Star Football Game Friday night at 8:30, channel 9, and the Fisher Body Awards Tuesday night at 8:30, channel 5.

Please address all letters to Managing Editor, c/o TV GUIDE, 731 S. Plymouth Court, Chicago 5, Ill.

Miss Francis and Miss Frances

Recently on What's My Line, Steve Allen introducing Arlene Francis said she was on a TV program called Talent Patrol. I would like to know if she is really on this program since Steve Allen kids so often. If she is, why is this show not seen in the Chicago area? Also I enjoy Miss Frances of Ding Dong School very much and would like to know if she is on other TV shows?—E. Bolger, Chicago. (Arlene Francis is now permanent femcee of Talent Patrol. Show is seen in Chicago via kinescope on Channel 7, 9:30 P.M. Sunday. Miss Frances is only seen on Ding Dong School.—Ed.)

Kay's Worst Fault

In your article on Kay Ashton-Stevens in the July 24 issue, you failed to mention the worst of her faults, that of interrupting her guests constantly. I find the guests and chatter appealing but after a few minutes of her constant interruptions, I get completely disgusted. I'm sure if Mrs. Stevens were aware of her rudeness to guests, she would correct this mistake and become a popular addition to Chicago TV.—Mrs. Carol Hynes, Chicago.

Too Normal?

This is a reply to "M. S. P." whose letter appeared in your July 24 issue. If singers like Eddie Fisher are a dime a dozen, why is he getting such huge sums of money for appearances? Just because Eddie doesn't wave his arms or tear his hair, people don't appreciate him. He's just a regular guy with a wonderful voice.—Beverly Daggett, Kenosha, Wis.

What Price Eddie?

In regard to "M. S. P.'s" letter—if singers like Eddie Fisher are a dime a dozen, could he please tell us where we could purchase a few gross?—Bobbie, Vicki and Rochelle, Chicago.

Reviewing the Reviews

Despite what you said in your reviews of two shows—On Your Account and Ladies Choice—we enjoy them much more than the program they replaced, The Kate Smith Hour. We certainly don't look forward to seeing that show again this fall.—P. E., East Moline, Ill.

Arthur's Operation

I'm sick of hearing about Arthur Godfrey and his hip operation. Five fellows, myself included, went through two such operations, one on each hip. It meant three years of slow torture, and we never had anybody babying us. By his quick recovery, it couldn't have been very serious. We enjoy his show very much—that is, when he's not there.—A Listener, Aurora, Ill. (Despite possible over-publicity and his speedy recovery, Godfrey's surgery was known to be risky and painful.—Ed.)

Still a Bachelor

A slight disagreement exists among myself and friends as to the age of Liberace and whether or not he is married. Would you please give us the right answers?—Miss D. Sparks, Cassopolis, Mich. (Liberace, who admits to being 32, is single.—Ed.)

Keen for Ken

I certainly enjoy the stories Ken Nordine reads. They scare me half to death, but I like that kind. It's the only program my mother lets me stay up late to look at because she enjoys it also.—Sue Spieler, Morris, Ill. (See story on page 3 about Ken and his tales.—Ed.)

Off to Fast Start

I think the Miller at Midnight show on Friday nights is wonderful. I enjoyed his first show very much, particularly as The Four Aces, who were his guests, are my favorite recording artists.—Donna Parish, Park Ridge, Ill.

Offerman, soil conservationist, U. S. Soil Conservation Service, both of DeKalb, Illinois.

Dear Boss:

How long will an overworked Mother Nature be able to supply TV's insatiable demand for long-necked denizens of the animal world?

Oliver Dragon started it all with his convenient dragon neck exactly the size of Burr Tillstrom's arm. Then Garfield Goose was invented to take Frazier Thomas off his unemployment compensation and not long after, John Conrad's Elmer the Elephant, complete with flexible schnoz, came on the scene.

There are just so many long-necked animals available--I hear there's a Gerry Giraffe on a Southern TV station and an unemployed TV announcer is now peddling a new kid show featuring Oscar the Ostrich. I'm already watching the want-ads in Variety and Billboard for something along these lines: WANTED--Actor with long arm to portray TV character on Barney the Boa Constrictor show.

There was bound to be a Quiz Show to end all quiz shows. I think a guy named Bernard Prockter (or something like that) has finally done it with his ANYONE CAN WIN show. Cartoonist Al Capp bulled his way through as MC of a three-ring circus maze, the likes of which you wouldn't believe without seeing for yourself.

Lights light up, bells ring, a mystery guest wears a no-face mask, bathing beauties promenade, 47 members of the studio audience split up a $2,000 prize 47 ways and a home viewer gets a phone call from Capp to see if she can win a grand by identifying the mystery guest. She can't. Frankly, I couldn't even identify the program. It wasn't animal, vegetable or mineral.

Chub.

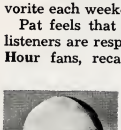
400 HOUR FANS AGREE: "WE LIKE GALLICCHIO!"

by WM. A. QUE

"The old feeling of running the "400" Hour is coming back, and it's wonderful!" So says Pat Gallicchio in summarizing his first month on the job as emcee of the WMAQ-Northwestern Railway program favorite each weekday morning at 7:30.

Pat feels that many of you radio listeners are responsible. Many "400" Hour fans, recalling Pat's stint as program conductor while Norman Ross served in the Air Force during World War II., have been kind enough to send letters to Pat welcoming him back to the old "station" and commenting graciously about the fine job he has done since returning.



Pat Gallicchio

Pat is overly modest in being surprised over this response. It wasn't difficult to predict that many listeners would write to say that he's just right for the "400" Hour, not only in commentary but most of all in his superb ability to choose really enjoyable recorded music.

* * * *

Music, in an entirely new and unusually delightful mood, is being presented on WMAQ's broadcasts of Tom Tom to Didgeridoo every Saturday afternoon at 5:15. It's a special series of recordings and interesting sidelights about the native music of Arabia, Africa and lands in the Far East. Dr. R. A. Waterman, of Northwestern University, handles the show and is, in all probability, radio's first "anthropological-musicological disc jockey." —Adv.

Lee Tracy

vs. MARTIN KANE

Too Much Pipe Smoke Closes a Private Eye

ITEM: As of August 27th, Martin Kane, Private Eye, TV's oldest detective show, will have a new format with Lee Tracy being replaced in the title role by Film Star Mark Stevens and the title changed to Martin Kane, Detective. During Tracy's 15 months in the show, the rating was boosted 12 points, but it was decided that a change in format would require a new star.

Cornered in a restaurant booth in the RCA building, Tracy was cheerfully complacent about becoming an unemployed private eye. No kiddie in the acting business, Old Pro Tracy is familiar with the employment problems of actors. Contemplating his sudden liberation from a weekly show, he assessed his situation with no detectable overtones of bitterness:

"The president of the United States Tobacco Company had me out to his house in April when the change was decided upon. He's really a wonderful guy. He told me that he was very happy about the job I had done for his products. But the show had sold so much pipe tobacco that they could no longer fill the demand.

New Star Needed

"So now they want to push their king-size cigaret and figure a higher-toned show will do it. I told him that I didn't see how that would mean I'd have to be replaced, but he just laughed and said that I didn't understand how radical the change was going to be. They needed a new star."

Although the new format had not been announced, it was no secret that it was to be a documentary along the lines of Dragnet, currently the most successful mystery show on TV. From this there might be evidence that private eye shows are becoming old hat. On this, Tracy commented:

"That's how the public taste has changed. Ten years ago, you'd never see a show with a cop as a hero. People seemed to have a deep antipathy for those brass buttons. Now people are crying for realism. It just shows how tastes change."

The vagaries of TV programming take on a comic aspect at times. The Martin Kane show is a good example. When Tracy was called in and given the bad news, he was told that Kane was to become a young police lieutenant and the show was to use stories drawn from police files.

Cigarets Instead of Pipes

But shortly thereafter, the sponsor discovered that six new shows coming on in the fall were using the police file gimmick, overcrowding the field a bit. A quick about-face was executed and now Kane remains a private eye. The only changes in the show aside from the star will be that Kane will smoke cigarets instead of a pipe, and the show's famous integrated commercials will be abandoned for the sake of authenticity. Seems that the police lieutenant hanging out at a tobacco counter couldn't be a very effective cop, so now he'll have to get his tobacco on his own time. In addition, improvements are planned for the show's scripts.

Tracy was the third in line in the part of Martin Kane. His predecessors, William Gargan and Lloyd Nolan, also played in the conventional hard-boiled manner, but the longtime fans of the show say that Tracy's playing gave the part an added dimension of tension.

Playing a hard boiled cynic with a thick streak of sentimentality is old stuff for Lee. His most famous part was that of the wise-cracking, tough newspaperman, Hildy Johnson, in Hecht and MacArthur's super-charged Front Page.

Lee was lured from the stage to Hollywood after that play, and recreated the part of Hildy Johnson, using different names, in dozens of films. He never did play in the movie version of Front Page, the reason being what might be Tracy's own indictment of Hollywood's standards. He says that he didn't get the part because "I wasn't pretty enough."

One of filmland's big stars in the Thirties, Lee practically passed from the public view during the Forties. (One reason: During the war he spent his time as a captain in the military police.) Then a few years back, he landed a couple of fat parts on Broadway, as a Navy officer in Herman Wouk's The Traitor and as the star of a revival of George Kelly's The Showoff, a play in which he starred originally in the Twenties.

With Audra Lindley: he enlivened the show by giving it more dramatic tension.

The critical send-offs he received from both these parts soon made him a much-in-demand star on the top TV dramatic shows. He was signed as the star of The Amazing Mr. Malone, a mystery series which he left to become Martin Kane.

Losing the job of Kane comes as a serious blow to Lee. He'll have no trouble winning parts on other TV dramatic shows, but he was happy in the routine of the Kane part, where he knocked himself out for four days a week, then loafed for three. Asked if he found it boring to play the same part every week, he replied, "Why should it be? It's a new script and a new situation every week. That presents new problems and gives me a chance to develop different facets of the Kane character."

Eyes the Box Scores

Away from his job, Lee is a high-living marathon conversationalist with the emphasis on sports. He played some semi-pro baseball as a young man and still gives the daily box scores a thorough perusal. He also apparently doesn't believe in getting much sleep. According to his wife, he never feels the inclination to go to bed before 5 A.M. Since he has to rehearse in the morning, this keeps his sleep time down to a minimum. Now that he's leaving the Kane part, of course, he'll be able to catch up on his sleep, but he probably won't.

A member of the board of Actor's Equity, Lee has a wide friendship in the acting trade, and is refreshingly free of the prima donna aspects frequently associated with his craft. He's just a fun-loving guy with enough ham in him to make acting his chosen (and profitable) profession.

For better or for worse, the tough-talking, private eye type which was a trend before the documentaries came along, can probably be credited as a creation of Lee Tracy's. He was doing it in movies before Mike Barnett, Martin Kane and Philip Marlowe were invented.

Time for the Dentist

What are Lee's plans for the future? "First off," he says, "I'm going to spend three weeks in a dentist's chair. After that, I have no immediate plans. We've got a big house out in California, but I don't think we'll go back there for a while anyhow. I'll probably just stick around New York and see what happens."

As for Mark Stevens, Lee's successor in the Kane part? He has a big job ahead of him. Lee may be limited in his creative ability, but within the bounds of what he does create, he's an actor's actor.

TV in the news

CONTRIBUTING to visual quality, a French camera nicknamed "the Eclair," is being used at NBC studios. The camera employs a combined prismatic viewing and focusing device.

Television servicemen were handed kudos in a Nation-wide survey conducted by Elmo Roper. Of the 5000 set owners interviewed, 90 percent indicated approval of their serviceman's work. In a similar survey conducted last year, 86 percent voted approval.

There are more television sets than phones or bathtubs in the Cleveland-Akron-Canton, Ohio, area, according to an independent survey taken by the Admiral Corp. The report indicates 700,000 TV sets, 660,000 telephones and 640,000 bathtubs.

A new TV camera lens with an 80-inch focal length is being used by the BBC. Built by British Marconi, the lens uses the reflecting system, has an overall length of 20 inches and weighs 20 pounds.

According to an NBC survey, there are 24,292,600 homes in the U. S. with television sets. Announcement was made by Hugh M. Beville, Jr., director of research and programming at NBC. The survey shows five cities with more than 1,000,000 sets, including New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Boston.

In Tokyo, where installation and maintenance costs of a TV set approximate $300 yearly, three contest winners refused to accept their prizes—television sets. They insisted on the money instead. Harassed contest managers decided that when TV sets are next offered as prizes, they'll insist on a year's free service for winners.

Jack Mahoney
Range Rider

No knockout: Dick West missed the Range Rider's jaw but not by very much.

A TV MOVIE FIGHT HITS THE ROAD!

Chairs last one performance when swung, and maybe a week if used for kick-off stunt as at the right.

Mahoney's turn: punch sends West flying across table to land on his feet.

JACK MAHONEY, Hollywood cowboy star, and Dick West, his sidekick in the Range Rider series of telefilms, have introduced a new wrinkle to the rodeo circuit this year. In 10 minutes of concentrated action, they stage a "real" TV movie fight.

Thousands of rodeo-goers will now bear witness that it looks as real off the TV screen as it does on. West shoots a straight right, and the Range Rider's head flies back. Mahoney recovers and knocks West backward over a table. He jumps after him and kicks him in the chest.

West pounces on Mahoney in a chair and is kicked high into the air. They slug it out with fists and finally with splintering kitchen chairs.

When TV GUIDE took these pictures, Mahoney explained: "We don't really hit each other."

"Then why," asked West, "am I black-and-blue?"

Oof! Dick grunts as Mahoney vaults over the table and kicks him in the chest.

Reviews

Vicki Mills, Red Benson: she's winsome and he's genial on summer show.

NAME THAT TUNE

PROGRAM OF THE WEEK

REMEMBER Stop the Music and Sing It Again on TV, in which contestants had to guess the title of a slightly disguised song? Well, that stunt is back on the air for the summer in a modified version, this time labeled Name That Tune. It's a mildly diverting little affair in which home viewers can have some fun trying to identify song titles ahead of the studio contestants (NBC, Monday nights).

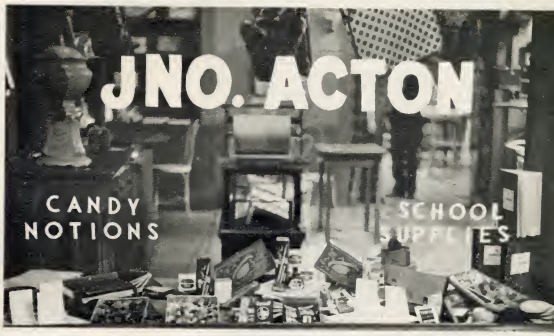
Just as with its antecedent programs, this new entry had its genesis on radio. The transition to TV was an easy one, with just a few visual props added. The program, not too bad in view of other summer fare, is too lightweight to rate a permanent spot during the winter season.

Red Benson is emcee, and is genial almost to the point of distraction. That constant smile and the bright, snappy patter he strikes up with contestants are probably sincere. But after several sessions are watched, they seem forced and contrived. He does an okay job, though, in keeping the froth bubbling atop the program.

Vicki Mills, as featured vocalist, is a winsome gal who impresses with her charm and good voice. Unfortunately, as soon as a contestant guesses one of her tunes, she's almost rudely cut off. While there's little time for her to do a complete song during the short half-hour format, it would be a nice idea if she were given more of a chance to strut her stuff.

Two contestants from the studio audience are first interviewed by Benson, a la Groucho Marx. They then take seats at the far end of the stage to listen to the masked tunes. As soon as one of them thinks he has the answer, he must race across the stage and pull a cord which rings the bell.

The contest, consequently, becomes one of physical stamina and speed of foot between the two contestants, as well as of their knowledge of music.



Nostalgic: neighborhood store of 1919, the era of Wonderful John Acton.

NORWEGIAN family life is represented on TV with Mama, the Italian family had Life with Luigi and the Jewish family has The Goldbergs. Now the Irish have their day in Wonderful John Acton, a whimsically nostalgic program about an Irish family in a small midwestern town, circa 1919. It's a warm and mellow little show.

The program is the brain child of Edward A. Byron, veteran producer who was responsible for Mr. District Attorney on both radio and TV. It supposedly is semi-autobiographical. Byron probably used his own family only as a starting point for the show and he displays a perceptive memory in recreating the life of that period, which should evoke many pleasant memories in the minds of viewers.

The Wonderful John Acton of the title is the father of the family, excellently played by Harry Holcombe. But it's Ian Martin as Uncle Terence and Ronnie Walken, as the young son, around whom most of the situations revolve. Uncle Terence is a delightfully irascible old man, complete to the twinkle and heart of gold. Young Ronnie, of course, is the typical American boy.

The two of them together get into those minor but humorous scrapes which could occur in any family, and through their shrewdness and daring, they promptly set things right. Other cast regulars, including Pat Harrington, as Peter Bodkin, Sr.; Virginia Dwyer, as Julia Acton, the mother, and Jane Rose, as Aunt Bessie, treat their characterizations with a caressing touch.

Byron and his writers steer sharply clear of slapstick, featuring instead the type of comedy which usually elicits one long smile from the audience. As director of the show, Grey Lockwood gets the most from each script. John Gart's music helps set the moods and the scenes by Richard Day are fine replicas of smalltown Americana of that period.—R. S.

'Golly—are you home already!'

Buff Cobb tells how to spend a Vacation at Home

Good old summertime: for Buff Cobb there are water colors and a boat ride.

MRS. MIKE WALLACE, who is also Buff Cobb of Masquerade Party, has a theory about summer. She says, "You can either decide you'll swelter in the heat and then proceed to, or you can make the most of a good season. People who say there's nothing to do in their hometown," says Buff, "just aren't aware of the things available."

Buff enumerated a group of projects she has started that sounded like the master activity list for a day camp. She's learning to drive a car, paint with watercolors, play tennis, improve her cooking and see the sights of New York.

Buff thinks everyone should try to learn a new sport during the summer—preferably one that interests the man in your life. "If you've got a man, there's no better way to keep him than to do things together and if you're looking for a man, the golf course is a more likely spot to find him than your back yard."

She thought painting would be fun to do weekends at home, but she didn't know where to begin. She investigated a local museum, found it gave courses at reasonable rates. Most museums, universities and YWCA's give such courses.

Find out what places there are to visit. Buff discovered there is a four-hour boat ride around Manhattan—it has been given for years—and almost had to drag Mike and some of their friends onto it. "Everyone loved it—afterwards," she says.

If your town doesn't offer boat rides, it does have a TV or radio station, newspaper, industrial plant or factory to visit. Almost all public service organizations conduct tours.

"The thing to do," Buff says, "is imagine you have a friend visiting from out-of-town. Make a list of all the places you would impress her with—not necessarily expensive places either. Your fictional friend could be from the country and might be impressed with watching the trucks roll in at the local farmers' market."

The Pros Are Good, Say They

THE muscle men of football, which is wittily described as autumn pastime, began muscling into the sports news in July and on August 14 they'll muscle onto America's television screens from Chicago, a remarkable city whose residents think nothing of paying $5.50 a seat for a sweltering summer exhibition.

First major presentation to be dusted off for football's show case is, as usual, Chicago's Annual All-Star game between a squad of weanling intellectuals recently shaken out of the academic ivy and the defending champions of the National Professional League, the Detroit Lions.

Strictly speaking it is not a contest between Professionals and Amateurs, campus godlings vs. mercenaries, for the College All-Stars are no longer collegians, having abandoned intellectual pursuits, like panty-raids, months ago. Many have already signed on for postgraduate work with the Chicago Bears, New York Giants or some other such cultural agency.

Frequently the Chicago entertainment is enlivened by one or more exceptional performances among the All-Stars, with a Buddy Young or a George Ratterman showing the class which will make him a star in the professional game. Chances are somebody like Maryland's Jack Scarbath or Michigan State's Don McAuliffe or Pennsylvania's Ed Bell will demonstrate again that there is no such wide difference, as the pros pretend, between the quality of undergraduate football and that of the money game.

By the time a young man has had eight years of prep school and college competition not to mention assorted "bowl" games and other semi-pro experience copped on the sneak, he is regarded in campus circles as a "veteran." A year later he joins the pros and is termed a "rookie"; it'll be three or four years the pros say, before he'll grow up to a man's game.

If the pros enjoyed any such overwhelming superiority as they claim, these exhibitions with fresh-hatched collegians would be mockery.

On one side of the field is a party dimpling shyly under the appellation of "world's greatest." Its members do nothing but play and practice football; over a period of years they have been selected out of the whole vast national reservoir of young talent; they have been tested and trained and coached and blended into a unit.

On the other side is a pick-up team of strangers schooled in dissimilar systems of play, hastily assembled and sketchily coached for one performance in which victory brings no greater rewards than defeat.

Not infrequently this ragtag band beats the masters. If the collegians don't win they usually give it a rousing riffle, as they did in Chicago last year when they led into the fourth quarter before losing, 10 to 7. Only in the art of self-praise are the pros clearly superior.
